How to use the book

AR storytelling is a new and immersive way to read stories. This application provides you with the most advanced storytelling techniques using Augmented Reality. Read the instruction and start your journey.

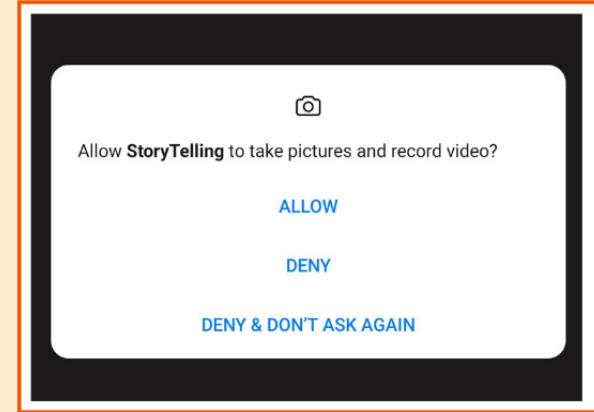

Get familiar with page elements.
Key elements on each page:
- text of story
- images with # and number

Download the AR Storytelling from the App store.
You can scan the QR code above or search "Finding Mother" in your application store.

Open the App and start to read.
You might need to allow your camera on your device.

Scan the image with # and number.
For example, you need to scan #1 and the image next to it to read the first page.

Listen & watch the AR Scene.
You can press the start, pause or stop button on your screen to start, pause or stop the story of the page.

Enjoy your reading!
You can move your device around the scene but try not to lose the image.

At the top of a big green Spruce tree, mother Sparrow sat on her egg in her nest.

All of a sudden, the egg jumped.

Mother sparrow said:

"my baby will be here. I must get something for him to eat." She flew away and left the egg in the nest.

After mother sparrow left a few seconds later, the egg jumped.. jumped.. and jumped.

Finally, the baby sparrow came out of the egg.
The baby sparrow looked around and asked: "where is my mother?"

He looked up and down the nest, trying to find his mother.

"I need to find my mother!" said the baby sparrow.

He walked out of the nest and down out of the tree.

#4

As the baby sparrow didn't learn how to fly yet, he kept falling.

"Watch out! Hold my hand!"
said the flying Dandelion.

The baby Sparrow grabbed the hand of Dandelion.
They floated together with the wind.

"What are you doing, Baby sparrow?" asked the Dandelion.

"I need to find my mother!" said the baby sparrow.

"Poor thing! Let's go and find your mother!"

After a while, the Dandelion and the baby sparrow landed on the back of a cow.

The baby sparrow asked the cow: "are you my mother?"

"How could I be your mother? I'm a cow. I'm big, and you are small."

The cow said, "your mother has beautiful feathers."

"The cow is not your mother" said the Dandelion.

The baby sparrow and Dandelion went on and came to a hen.

"You have beautiful feathers! Are you my mother?" asked the baby sparrow.

"I'm not your mother. I'm a hen." The hen said, "your mother can fly."

"The cow is not your mother, and the hen is not your mother" said the Dandelion.

The baby sparrow and Dandelion went on and met a flying crow.

#8

"You can fly. Are you my mother?" the baby sparrow said to the crow.

"Ha, I'm not your mother! She has a gray head, white cheeks and a black bib.

Keep looking. I saw her around here a few minutes ago."

"The cow is not your mother, the hen is not your mother, and the crow is not your mother" said the Dandelion.

#9

Baby sparrow needed to find someone who had beautiful feathers, who could fly and had gray heads, white cheeks and a black bib. That should be his mother.

Baby sparrow and Dandelion landed on a rock to rest. They saw someone flying at them.

"Look! Who is she?" asked the Dandelion.

"She has beautiful feathers, she can fly, and she has gray heads, white cheeks and a black bib.

She must be my mother!" said the baby sparrow.

"Are you my mother?" asked the baby sparrow.

"Yes! My baby! I am your mother!" said the mother sparrow.

At last, the baby sparrow had found his mother.

"Thank you, Mr. Dandelion!" said baby sparrow.

They said goodbye to the Dandelion, flew back to the tree, and returned to their warm and comfortable nest.
